

ONLINE HOME STUDY BAR REVIEW

The Fleming's Fundamentals of Law (FFOL) ONLINE Bar Review is a home study program for those who cannot attend the live lectures. This program combines the benefits of the FFOL live course with the advantage of studying at home, at work, or wherever you choose. All lectures are digitally recorded live for online streaming via the Internet, and are hosted through the Blackboard educational service.

As an online student, you receive the identical essay and performance writing assignments as those attending the live program. The course includes MBE assignments for each MBE subject. Home Study students e-mail their writing samples to the FFOL offices for a CD critique by our staff lawyers. Here is a list of what the course includes:

Common Questions and Answers

Q: What makes the FFOL Bar Review superior to other less expensive programs?

A: The most unique quality about FFOL Home Study Bar Review is the personal attention you receive in the program. On-staff attorneys are available Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. (Pacific Standard time) to answer questions. Also, every assigned essay is manually graded by an experienced attorney and orally critiqued on CD. Each critique goes over your strengths and weaknesses and offers suggestions on how you can correct your weaknesses to achieve a passing grade on the bar. These critiques are mailed to the address you designate. The program is designed to be interactive in every respect.

Q: Why is the FFOL Online Home Study Bar Review schedule superior to other programs?

A: The Online Home Study Bar Review allows you to begin studying at any time. You may begin studying as early as 4½ months prior to the Bar examination. This gives you a full week to learn the substantive law in each subject. After you complete all of the substantive law lectures according to the schedule, you proceed to an FFOL Boot Camp schedule that allows you to fine-tune and test take 30 days prior to the exam without the pressure of having to learn new information. Also, you can listen to the lectures as many times as you want or go to a specific area of law you want to review as each lecture is conveniently separated into tracks for easy navigation.
